FEARS NOTHING CAN BE DONE

Bonaparte Is Evasive When Oklahomans Visit Him.

Washington, May 21.—Three democratic members of the Oklahoma constitutional convention, Messrs. Ledbetter, Moore, and Hayes, appointed committee by the president of the convention, W. H. Murray, to come to Washington and confer with the legal officers of the government respecting certain developments affecting the election to ratify the constitution arrived in Washington yesterday.

This afternoon they had a talk with Attorney General Bonaparte calling his attention to the injunctions which had been issued restraining the governor from issuing his election proclamation and the election of officers of the territory from performing certain duties and asking that the attorney general take steps to have the legality of this action looked into. Incidentally they took up the recent decision of Judge Panoast which in effect defers for a long time the election for the ratification of the constitution recently adopted.

Speaking subsequently of the committee's visit Mr. Bonaparte admitted that the gentlemen from Oklahoma had asked him to appoint government council to defend certain suits growing out of the action of the constitutional convention. The attorney general replied that this course would seem to identify the department of justice with one side of the controversy to the exclusion of the other, to which he thought there was very serious objection.

To the statement that the people of Oklahoma desired to act in strict observance of the law in framing their constitution, and to that end asked for any suggestions the department might see to make, the attorney general said that the situation was peculiar and in part at least so far as he knew, unprecedented. He thought it would involve a serious question of policy whether any such suggestion could properly be made in advance of the final adoption of the constitution and its submission to the president; and that in any event the laws and the practice of the department forbade the attorney to give any legal opinion unless requested to do so by the president or a head of one of the executive departments.

In an interview here today, Mr. Ledbetter, said he had received satisfactory assurance that the president had not said he would refuse to issue a statehood proclamation. On the contrary he felt satisfied the president would issue, when convinced, as he would be, that the constitution is republican in form, as required by the enabling act. The delegation as well as Governor Frantz will remain in Washington until the president's return. Tonight the committee will make public a statement detailing the facts they presented to the attorney general.

MORE ABOUT THAT COWARDLY SCHEME.

Last week The News warned voters against a scheme of Judge Furman's political enemies to induce many of his supporters to vote for both him and certain other candidates from the Indian Territory side. It that article it was said such votes would not be counted.

In this last statement the News was in error. It would be the duty of the holders of the primary election to count such a ballot, but this fact remains unchanged: such a vote would be a nullity—just as if a man did not vote at all for senator. Only one nominee can be chosen from each of the two territories. The state central committee has decreed that the leading man in each territory shall be declared a democratic nominee, and they will be so declared. No one is going to fly in the face of the party organization and dispute the binding effect of the recommendation. No one dares dispute the wisdom of this arrangement.

Voters, you may depend upon it, if any such votes as referred to above are cast, they will be cast by unsophisticated friends of Judge Furman, for it's in Judge Furman's strongholds where this poisonous dope is being scattered. Neither Judge Furman nor his friends would stoop to such cowardly a scheme to sap an opponent's support.

Every voter should vote for one man for U. S. senator, who lives in Indian Territory, and for one who lives in Oklahoma. If you are a friend of Furman you will do this and will spurn as an insult any suggestion to the contrary.

There are wily, unscrupulous henchmen abroad in the land working against him. Beware of their wiles!

A NEW CANDIDATE

McGinley, of Norman, for Corporation Commissioner.

The News is authorized to announce for the office of state corporation commissioner P. J. McGinley, of Norman, Oklahoma.

For 18 years Mr. McGinley was in the traffic department where he became quite proficient and conversant with the interpretation of freight tariffs and the making of freight rates. Four years ago he quit the railway service and has since been in mercantile and cotton business.

There is no question but that on the state commission the services of a member familiar with railroad technique would be invaluable, assuming he were an incorruptible man, and the democracy of Mr. McGinley's home county vouch for him as such a man.

Here is what his home paper, the Norman Democrat-Topic says of him:

It is with pleasure that we announce the candidacy of P. J. McGinley of Norman for the important position of corporation and railroad commissioner. Mr. McGinley is 37 years old and has been in active business since 18 years of age. He is a splendid business man and has the respect of the business world. He is a man of exemplary habits—just the person a business man would employ to conduct his affairs. Mr. McGinley is a man of decisive opinions and is the best posted candidate on railroad affairs who is before the people today. He possesses some of the elements of the demagogue, but believes that all interests are entitled to a fair and impartial hearing.

The democratic county central committee at a meeting on April 13th unanimously declared for his nomination.

"Pat McGinley will receive the vote of every democrat in Cleveland county, where he is so well and favorably known. His platform is well worth your time to read. It is straight forward and means what it says."

HAVE FAITH IN FURMAN

Ada Statesman Spoke to Packed Houses in Delaware County.

Grove, I. T., May 19.—Henry M. Furman, Saturday afternoon and night, spoke in the county seat of the new county of Delaware.

In the afternoon the court house was packed with farmers who were evidently well pleased with the utterances of the speaker. At night the town people turned out en masse to hear what they pronounced the best speech ever heard in Delaware county.

Judge Furman was a stranger here, but the people know him now and regard him as their friend. The election returns in this county will show that the people have faith in Furman.

WINNING WITHOUT HENCHMAN OR HOARD.

Even before he began his canvass for the United States senate Henry M. Furman stood high with the people of the new state. Now as he tours the territories, reports from places where he speaks show that day by day, as the people get better acquainted with the man, he grows yet stronger.

This is but natural. He is well known as of senatorial calibre. His career has been such as to command the confidence of the plain, honest, unpurchasable people throughout the new commonwealth. These people want a man in the senate to work for the people's interest—not a man merely to augment the membership of the "Millionaire Club." Furman is not wealthy—indeed is poor, as compared with his opponents; he has no hirelings running over the country heralding his claims and secretly stabbing opponents; he is buying votes neither directly nor indirectly; those who are working for him and those who vote for him do so through no mercenary motives—Neither gold nor taints their patriotism.

The following excerpt from the North how he impresses the people where on Judge Furman's reception in that town last week, is representative of how he impresses the people wherever he goes:

"He had a large and appreciative audience. For an hour and a half he held the closest attention of his audience on the political issues and in the discussion of his excellent platform. Judge Furman is seeking his support at the hands of the people without the influence of money but upon his own merit. If nominated it will be done by the common people whose friend he has always been. At the present time he is attorney for the Indian Farmers Union. This shows his standing among the farmers.

"He has many old-time friends here and will receive a large vote in Cleveland county. He made one of the strongest speeches ever heard in Norman."

Not a Fish But a Rabbit Story.

The News never did make mention of the laughable incident Harry Keller is telling about, and it happened about a week ago. Harry is foreman out at the dam site, and he has a large force of men who all vouch for the truthfulness of the story. Harry says that never before did he see a cottontail rabbit kill a large snake until the other day. The snake was making an attack on a young rabbit, when the mother rabbit entered the fight and completely put the snake out of business. A negro witness, one of the hands, said to Keller, "Boss, this am sure a fighting country. Even the rabbits fight here. They don't do that in Texas, do they?"

Meeting at Maxwell.

A political meeting was held out at Maxwell Monday night. The candidates for state senator were present, as was also J. H. Chambers of Atoka, candidate for district judge. Speeches were made by all candidates present. It was a big meeting and much interest was manifested. Some county candidates were also present.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

CHAPTER XXII.

An Unexpected Swim.

For a time it seemed to me that the fellow's life must have been lost and that his body had floated down the stream with the current, which increased steadily in force as it neared the falls, some two miles below.

When he had come I did not know, for I could not conceive that a man would be swimming in the river at this time of year, and just as I was about to row ashore and report the affair to those who could institute a proper search for the body, an idea flashed into my head and served to explain the matter in short order.

The ghosts, or at least the men who impersonated them, had always disappeared from sight at this point on the river bank, and, doubtless, they had dived into the water and found shelter somewhere under the shore. If this were the case, a man might easily enough have ventured out from his hiding place, and, upon seeing me, returned and waited until the coast was clear again.

I pulled in close to the shore, and, paddling slowly along under the overhanging bank, I soon discovered a broad flight of stone steps lying entirely beneath the surface of the water, and leading apparently to some sort of a tunnel or cave.

As I made this discovery I had no doubt that the mysterious figure I had seen had emerged from this sunken tunnel, and, upon encountering me, had returned to it with all possible haste. I certainly had no desire to follow him through the submerged entrance to his place of concealment, but I determined to oust him without delay, and leaving my skiff at the boathouse, I returned for a final reconnoiter before summoning a gang of men to dig down from above and lay bare the subterranean vault to which the submerged stairway doubtless led.

Clambering up on the knoll that overlooked this part of the river, I cast my eye in every direction up and down the stream, keeping as close a watch as possible on the entire landscape, and, even sooner than I had expected, I was rewarded by seeing the fellow's head again emerge from the water about 20 feet off shore.

As he shook the drops from his face and glanced about him apprehensively I crouched low down on the ground, back of a brush, and watched him attentively from this point of vantage. His countenance was so distorted with the cold and the water in his eyes that I could not have recognized him even if I had seen him before, and he seemed to swim with great difficulty, doubtless because of the icy chill of the water; but he went bravely about it and struck out manfully for the shore, which he reached in a few sturdy strokes.

As he got into shallow water and made his way to the land I could see that he was fully dressed, even to his shoes, and that he was shivering violently from the effect of his exertion and the exposure to which he had been subjected.

I was almost on the point of calling out to him and offering him such assistance as I could render lest he should collapse before my eyes, when I discovered that he, himself, had made provision for this contingency. From under a growth of underbrush he hurriedly extracted a heavy ulster or storm coat, and, taking a flask from one of the pockets, he raised it to his lips and drank long and greedily. This done, he drew the coat nervously about his shaking limbs, and, with a hunted sort of a look in every direction but mine, so that I did not get a view of his face, he ran at top speed along the shore and finally disappeared in the trees at the turn of the river.

It would have been futile to have followed him, and I once more began to look about me before calling for aid and having the cavern, or whatever it was, unroofed. The lawn at this part of the grounds was kept in especially good condition, as it lay almost directly in front of the house, and scattered about it were numerous flower beds and clumps of shrubbery.

In going over this area carefully and systematically as I did, I was not long in finding in the center of a mass of thickly leaved evergreen bushes, a patch of earth that had evidently been disturbed within a few hours. On brushing away the leaves and dirt, which seemed to have been replaced hurriedly, in an awkward attempt to conceal the spot, I came upon an iron grating like the covering to the manhole of a sewer, but with openings which, if they had been clear, would have permitted a certain limited amount of ventilation. This lid was hinged at one side but was not fastened down and I had no great difficulty in lifting it up so that I could peer into the blackness below.

An iron ladder, very much rusted and weather worn, but apparently perfectly strong and secure, was attached to one side of this shaft, and, after waiting for a few minutes until my eyes had become accustomed to the blackness of the hole, I could see that it was about 12 feet deep and opened into the arched roof of a tunnel of the Katy.

some kind, the floor of which, as well as the sides and top, was constructed of massive masonry.

At times the most level-headed and evenly balanced man is tempted to do some foolhardy thing, and, while I make no claim to any unusual degree of personal bravery, and have not a dare-devil trait in my disposition, I was suddenly seized with an irresistible desire to descend into this forbidding looking pit and investigate it for myself, then and there.

My revolver was fully loaded and I also carried a small pocket-lamp which had been given me some time before and which I had found useful on several occasions; less strenuous, however, than the one at hand.

With these thoughts in my mind and, it must be confessed, with many misgivings which I strove to keep down and ignore, I propped open the lid of the manhole and descended boldly into the underground passage, holding my revolver firmly in my hand and ready to light my little lamp as soon as I reached the bottom of the ladder.

Once in the tunnel I stepped to one side in the direction of the river, where I could not be seen by anyone looking in from above, and tried to accommodate my eyes to the darkness of the place and avoid, if possible, the use of my lamp.

After a time I found that I could see fairly well and that I was in a long, narrow tunnel of brick and stone, about six feet wide and seven in height, which sloped gradually down to the river, where it ended in the flight of stone steps that I had seen and which were entirely under the surface of the water. There was a damp, noisome odor to the place and I soon recognized in it the same graveyard smell that I now knew so well and dreaded so much.

I had, however, expected something of this sort, and, nervously myself to almost anything that might be disclosed in my search, I proceeded cautiously and stealthily along toward the steps, thinking I would explore that part of the tunnel first, before going in the other direction.

I saw nothing of interest until I got near the water, where I found a heavy, warm coat neatly folded and, on it, a whisky flask with the cork loosened, evidently awaiting their owner and indicating clearly that he purposed returning by the route he had taken when he left.

Leaving these as they lay, I retraced my steps and passed once more under the open shaft and on up the gentle slope of the passage-way, holding my pistol well in front of me and wondering at what moment some ghastly sight would meet my gaze and account for the constantly increasing fetidness of the place. I had not lighted my lamp, for the faint glimmer that filtered in through the river water and the illumination from the shaft enabled me to see with reasonable distinctness.

As I proceeded up the tunnel, however, objects began to grow dimmer and dimmer and I was on the point of striking a light when I heard a sudden crash and saw, to my horror, that the lid of the manhole had fallen shut with a bang, leaving me in total darkness.

Before I could ignite my lamp or even collect my thoughts, there was a rush of foul air from the upper end of the tunnel and then some heavy, lumbering creature brushed past me, breathing into my face a hot breath of unspeakable suggestiveness and wheezing and mumbling like a fretful lion just after a generous meal.

I shrank close to the wall of my prison, for such it now was, not knowing what to do or which way to turn, when, to my great relief, the beast, or whatever it was, shuffled awkwardly past me again, still making horrid guttural sounds and breathing deeply as before.

A rat, or some similar little animal, scuttled over my feet at the same moment, stopping long enough to bite my ankle sharply, but I made no sound and held my breath until the more formidable creature was well beyond me and left me a free course to the river.

As soon as I felt that the coast was clear and that I could not be overtaken, I sped down the incline toward the steps and plunged headlong into the water, which glimmered faintly green before me. Striking out under the surface, I swam as far away from the entrance as I could, and, coming to the top at last, I made for the shore and dashed on to my room for whisky and dry clothing.

New Method Employed by Satisfied and Comfortable Husband.

It is the wife who is the head of the house, and it was she who decided upon the flat—and repented immediately afterward. The building was a new one, scarcely finished, and after the parlor ceiling had fallen twice and the repair man had botched a dozen small jobs she decided to move again.

In this she met the lively opposition of the family. They were all content with their rooms and the children begged for a delay. The husband took the matter with calmness and did not enter into the argument after expressing his entire contentment with the present conditions.

The wife worried and went flat hunting, but at last she announced that she had come to the conclusion that they would remain. The husband looked up placidly from his coffee cup. "I knew that several weeks ago," he announced.

"But I only decided this morning," she retorted in surprise.

He smiled pityingly. "Down at the church," he explained, "we have been giving you absent treatment for five weeks. After this you need not say that there is nothing in science."

Then he dodged the sugar bowl.

Much Used Wedding Present.

A Providence girl, who has been married about six months, had wedding cards a short time ago from an old school friend who had given her a wedding present, which, of course, demanded one in return. Among her wedding presents the Providence girl had duplicates in the shape of two silver card trays, and in a spirit of economy she decided to give one of these to her friend. It was marked with her own initials, but it would be only a matter of a few minutes to have them removed and the proper monogram cut.

She took it to the jeweler and explained what was to be done. He picked up the tray, looked at it closely and smiled.

"Madame," said he, "it will be impossible. I have already changed the initials on this same tray five times, and it has worn so thin that I cannot do it again without cutting through the bottom."

Had Good Eyesight.

A young man from the rural districts went to Boston, and while there visited the Harvard astronomical observatory and was allowed to look through a great telescope at the stars. "What is that star?" he inquired, pointing to a very bright one.

"Oh, that's Aldebaran," replied the attendant.

"Is it very far off?" asked the youth.

"About 10,000,000 miles."

"Then all I can say," said the visitor, "is that you must have wonderfully good eyes to make out that star's name, at that distance, even with that big telescope. It's really most marvelous."

Do Not Crowd the Season.

The first warm days of spring bring with them a desire to get out and enjoy the exhilarating air and sunshine. Children that have been housed up all winter are brought out and you wonder where they all came from. The heavy winter clothing is thrown aside and many shed their flannels. Then a cold wave comes and people say that grip is epidemic. Colds at this season are even more dangerous than in mid-winter, as there is much more danger of pneumonia. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, however, and you will have nothing to fear. It always cures, and we have never known a cold to result in pneumonia when it was used. It is pleasant and safe to take. Children like it. For sale by G. M. Ramsey, druggist.

Department of Woman's HOME MISSION SOCIETY

M. E. Church, South.

Why Have Home Missions?

1. Because Christ demanded them when he said, "Ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth."

2. Because we are directly concerned in home affairs. The weal or woe of our country makes for righteousness or iniquity, and thus shapes the destiny of our children. The early churches in Asia Minor and Africa fell away from Christ, and it is possible for the United States to revert to barbarism unless a holy zeal for the salvation of every citizen moves our hearts.

We have organized missions in 23 cities.

We are often asked, "What character of work is done in the city missions?"

There are five day nurseries, eight kindergartens, eighteen industrial schools, seven night schools, fifteen boys' clubs, ten girls' clubs, eleven mothers' clubs, five dispensaries, twelve Sunday schools, five reading rooms, one Door of Hope, house to house visiting, distributing, of literature, and the needy supplied.

Statistics: Auxiliaries 2,609; increase 244; members, 53,833; increase 6,325. Names on baby roll this year, 2,488; babies paid, $1345.43; names on brigade this year, 3,452; brigade paid $2,677.95. (Brigades have raised since beginning, four years ago, $9,346.53.)

LA FRANCE SHOE For Women

$3.00 $3.50

The final proof of value of a shoe—or any other article, for that matter—is the experience of those who buy it. The satisfactory results which the "La France" gives its wearers are shown by the large percentage of women who repeatedly come back to this store for another pair. The endurance of these stylish shoes never fails to commend itself to the practical woman. As for "La France" comfort—that can best be told by trying on a pair here. Then, too, there's much shoe satisfaction to be gained by a personal inspection of the "La France" shoes now being exhibited.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

GOVERNOR QUILTS UNDER FIRE

Herbert James Hagerman, the governor of New Mexico, who has resigned his office while under investigation by the legislature concerning his part in alleged extensive land frauds, is only 34 years old and one of the youngest governors in the country.

The charge is that the governor, without the knowledge and consent of the commissioner of public lands, delivered to the Pennsylvania Development company a deed for 7,000 acres of timber land; that he took the seal of the commissioner and unlawfully affixed it to the deed, that the land is worth from $25 to $100 an acre, but was sold at only three dollars an acre, that the federal law at the time forbade the selling of more than 160 acres to any one purchaser, and that therefore the territorial institutions to which these lands belonged were defrauded.

Ex-Gov. Hagerman is a product of the west. Born in Milwaukee, he spent his boyhood in Colorado and his youth in New Mexico.

Hagerman was appointed in 1897 by President McKinley second secretary of the United States embassy in Russia. E. A. Hitchcock, now secretary of the interior, was then ambassador at St. Petersburg. It was largely due to his good work as secretary of the embassy, both under Mr. Hitchcock and later under Charlemagne Tower, that his appointment as governor was secured. Mr. Hitchcock urged the appointment upon President Roosevelt. Following as it did close upon that of another young man to a similar position, the inference was drawn that Mr. Hagerman secured his place through a former connection with the rough riders, as did the governor of Oklahoma, but this is a mistake.

TO HEAD THEOSOPHISTS

Mrs. Annie Besant of Benares, India, has been nominated as world president of the Theosophical society, to succeed the late Col. Henry Steele Olcott, the president-founder of the organization. Col. Olcott, who was an old New York newspaper man and a veteran of the civil war, died recently following his return to India from Chicago, where he had attended the annual convention of the American section. On his deathbed Col. Olcott formally named Mrs. Besant, who had for years been his co-worker, to succeed him, a prerogative he held. The nomination must be ratified by a two-thirds vote of the societies of the world and the vote is soon to be taken.

Mrs. Besant is a noted writer and lecturer. She was born in Ireland. Her brother is Sir Henry Wood, secretary of the Society of Arts of London, who came to this country in 1903 on business connected with the world's fair at Chicago.

Mrs. Besant has made three lecture tours of America. She founded the Central Hindu College for girls at Benares, India, which has done wonderful work in raising the condition of the native girls of that country, and is its president.

The Theosophical society should not be confounded with the society at Point Loma, Cal., presided over by Catherine Tingley, which is an offshoot from the parent body. The Theosophical society was founded in New York city in 1875 by Mme. Blavatsky and Col. Olcott, and now has branches in all the principal cities of the civilized world. The headquarters of the society are at Benares, India.

TO PAINT KAISER'S SON

Mrs. Ruth Jewett Burgess, wife of Prof. John W. Burgess, Roosevelt lecturer at the University of Berlin, has been commissioned to paint a portrait of Prince Augustus Wilhelm, fourth son of Emperor William of Germany.

Mrs. Burgess was born in Montpelier, Vt., 42 years ago, and was the only child of Hon. T. P. Jewett, a leading banker and financier of Vermont a generation ago. Early in life she showed a decided talent for art, and this was fostered and developed. Thomas W. Wood, for many years president of the National Academy of Design of New York, who was a native of Montpelier and the founder of the Wood art gallery in this city, early took notice of Miss Jewett's talents and under his instructions she developed remarkable skill.

While in New York with her husband, when he was professor of constitutional and international law at Columbia university, she studied under William J. Whittemore and Kenyon Cox of that city.

During the past ten years Mrs. Burgess has been abroad several times, studying under the best art instructors and copying from the old masters in the famous galleries of the old world.

During the past winter while her husband was engaged in his duties at the University of Berlin, Mrs. Burgess has been copying several celebrated pictures in the Kaiser Friedrich museum and the Kaiser Friedrich Denkmal, the private galleries of the emperor. While engaged in this work her painting attracted the notice of Emperor William and the commission to paint the portrait of his son followed.

Mrs. Burgess inherited a large property from her father, much of which she has devoted to charitable purposes. She was much interested in the founding of the Wood art gallery in Montpelier, Vt., which was presented to that city by Thomas W. Wood in the hanging there of more than 100 famous products of his brush. Prof. Burgess has been a trustee of this art gallery since its inception.

PEACE ADVOCATE HONORED

Baron D'Estournelles de Constant, one of the distinguished foreign representatives at the recent dedication of the enlarged Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh, and who received the degree of LL. D. from the Western University of Pennsylvania, is one of the foremost authorities in the world on arbitration. He was a member of the first Hague conference, and is now one of the French members of The Hague court.

He is organizing the representative men of every nation into an international federation, whose motto is "My country's good through the peace of the world." The arbitration group in the French parliament, organized by him, has enabled France to conclude many treaties of arbitration.

Baron D'Estournelles some time ago invited a delegation of 100 from the United States congress to visit Paris and make a tour of France as the guests of his group.

Baron De Constant, who married an American woman and is a personal friend of Andrew Carnegie, is also a great admirer of President Roosevelt. At the time the British and German claims against Venezuela would have led to the use of military force but for his intervention the president demanded that the question be submitted to The Hague tribunal. Baron De Constant, a member of the tribunal, wrote to the president, thanking him for saving it from extinction. He has been French ambassador to Turkey and to England. He has been a senator of France and is an orator of note.

Just a Difference in Sound.

The difference between English and American methods of pronunciation often produces misunderstanding. The other day an Englishman who had just arrived at New York went to the Waldorf-Astoria. He was a bit lost for a minute just where to find the register book, the Waldorf office being divided into several departments, one for the "Information Bureau," another for "Letters," and so on. The Englishman finally stopped at one of the departments and inquired whether it was the desk of the hotel "clerk."

"No," was the reply, "this is the Waldorf-Astoria hotel." Through saying "clerk" instead of "clerk" the young man at the desk had taken the Englishman to mean Hotel Clark.

GETS $50,000 A YEAR.

YOUNG MAN WHOSE SALARY EQUALS THAT OF PRESIDENT.

Hoosier College Graduate, Aged 33, Receives Handsome Pay as Mining Expert for the Guggenheims—Was Star Athlete.

Indianapolis.—How many young men receive a straight salary equal to that of the president of the United States? There is one at least. Oscar B. Perry, of Bloomington, Ind., who, at his age, 30, receives $50,000 a year for his services.

This young man is paid that much for his brains, and it is not an excessive salary from the standpoint of the corporation which employs him. The investment of $50,000 a year has brought returns approaching the millions. It is a remarkable story of an Indiana boy who made the best of his talents and his opportunities, who made a college education count for all that it was possible to get out of it, and who now holds a position that few men of his age seldom attain. And he has been out of college but ten years, having graduated at the age of 20. Mr. Perry, an expert mining engineer, is general manager of some half dozen of the Guggenheim mining enterprises of Colorado, California, Canada and Alaska, the combined capitalization of which represents many millions. He has been with the Guggenheims about four years, his selection for the important position he now holds having been made by John Hays Hammond, long the right hand man of Cecil Rhodes in South Africa and recognized as one of the foremost mining experts of the world. His attention was attracted to Mr. Perry several years ago.

After graduation from Indiana university at Bloomington from the department of physics in 1897 Mr. Perry took a year's graduate work at the institution, then entered the school of mines of Columbia university, from which he took the E. M. degree in 1900. Soon after, in company with his father, a wealthy owner of stone quarries in the Bloomington district and one of the first to demonstrate the beauty and value for building purposes of the Oolitic limestone, he went to California and became interested in dredging for gold. He studied the dredges with the eye of an expert and made so many improvements that the machines soon came to be known as the Perry dredges.

His inventions soon attracted the attention of Mr. Hammond and led to his employment by the Guggenheims. One of the first enterprises handled by him for the Guggenheims was the Pacific Gold Dredging company of Oroville, Cal. He was soon operating for this company a fleet of five dredges.

all eminently successful from the start.

Ordinarily Mr. Perry travels 50,000 to 40,000 miles every year. In 1905 he visited Yukon, but traveled under an assumed name in order to better study mining conditions in the famous gold field. Last year he went again in one of the first boats in June, and during the four months after his arrival there accomplished results unheard of before in so short a period. From Alaska, near the close of the mining season, he went direct to the Canadian properties, traveling some 150 miles on horseback. From there he returned to New York city, where he spends his winters filing his reports, consulting with other engineers of the Guggenheim companies and outlining plans for the coming season. Notwithstanding his great successes, Mr. Perry is as modest and unassuming as when a student at the university. He is a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity and was the only member of his class to take his degree from the department of physics.

While he was delving in physics as few state university students have ever done before or since he played quarter back on the eleven and caught for the baseball nine. And he was a star in both games. He looked to the body as well as the mind. Now he is able to manage the business of several big companies, rush hither and thither from one ore bed to another, now in Colorado, next in Alaska, then Canada, then New York, all the time figuring and planning and looking to the future, and he still looks as youthful and carries the same enthusiasm as when he piloted the cream and crimson eleven to victory on the grid iron.

Rough Riders' Monument Unveiled in Arlington Cemetery.

Washington.—With an elaborate military display and appropriate exercises, the monument of the men of the "Rough Riders," who served in the war with Spain was dedicated in Arlington cemetery recently. In addition to the regular troops stationed in this vicinity and a part of the national guard of the District of Columbia, the ceremonies were participated in by President Roosevelt, who was colonel of the First Volunteer cavalry, or "Rough Riders," and many representatives of the diplomatic corps and officers of the army and navy. President Roosevelt delivered an address. A large number of former members of the regiment from out of town attended the dedication.

were preferred recently, tendered his resignation and the president has appointed Capt. George Curry, governor of Samar province, Philippine islands, to the post. Gov. Hagerman was recently in Washington to answer charges that related to the transfer of territorial lands to a Pennsylvania development company. While here he had a long interview with the president and Secretary Garfield about the charges, which he declared were the result of political intrigue. Capt. Curry enlisted in the Rough Rider regiment from Tularosa, N. M. He was a member of troop H and it was while he was serving in that organization that the president made his acquaintance. It is understood that the resignation was tendered in compliance with an intimation from the president that it would be accepted.

$3,000,000 for

Perhaps this story of the appropriation of millions for new engines of war would not look well or harmonize with an account of the latest discussions of the International Peace Tribunal, but nevertheless it makes interesting reading matter, for it is a fact that the last congress voted $3,000,000 for the purchase of submarine boats, and it is also a fact that in spite of the many adverse criticisms on this freak of the navy, this nation, as well as other world powers, are steadily developing this under-the-sea terror, and are gradually collecting quite a fleet of them.

It seems no longer to be a question as to whether submarines shall be built, but rather which of the several types of boats which have been produced is the best and the most worthy to be used as a pattern to follow in building those which will be purchased with the three million dollars of the people's money. Submarines have undoubtedly obtained a big and definite place in the general scheme of defense in the United States. They are recognized as an important factor in naval warfare, so that a new type of boat called the Octopus, built by the Electric Boat company, possesses a peculiar interest. For the Octopus is regarded by many experts as the highest type yet attained in this style of naval weapon. They call her the last word among the deadly submerged craft which are built to steal upon and destroy the battleship of the enemy.

There are scores of reasons, says its inventor, for calling the Octopus the greatest of all submarine craft. She is the biggest, to begin with. With a length of 105 feet, she makes the early type of submarine look like a toy. In spite of her greatly superior bulk she is more easily handled and guided than the smaller craft.

Her size and capacity are considered as confidential by the navy department, the only figures given out so far being that her length is 105 feet and displacement about 300 tons. Unofficial timing when running over the trial course shows here to have a speed of about 12 knots on the surface and nine knots submerged.

What would be the part such a vessel would play in a naval war?

She could sink beneath the surface of the sea, and completely out of sight of any possible enemy, travel any desired distance, rise to the surface so that only the top of the periscope would be showing, and launch a torpedo at an opposing battleship. Then down she could go again. And if the torpedo struck home, down the battleship would go, also, never to rise again.

These torpedoes give the ordinary individual an uncanny feeling, even to think of them. At a speed of 33 knots an hour, six feet below the surface of the water, so as to strike a warship below the armor belt, a torpedo hums along, leaving a trail of foam, 16 feet eight inches of menacing power driving straight from the goal. In the war head of the torpedo are from 250 to 300 pounds of gun cotton, enough to sink the strongest vessel afloat, or to blow up a town, and at the extreme tip of the rushing monster is a war nose, an extremely sensitive "cap" that causes the torpedo to explode when it strikes an object. A submarine can stand off a distance of three-quarters of a mile from a warship and launch a torpedo that will reach its destination.

It's not a beautiful thing to think of, death and destruction stealing from the sea below the surface upon a huge vessel of war filled with human beings. It makes all precautions seem vain and useless, and the usual elements of warfare are discounted. But then Marquis of Queensbury rules do not apply in actual war, and there is nothing to prevent hitting below the belt—especially below the armor belt.

If the Octopus made a hit with each of her torpedoes, her part in a naval engagement would be the utter destruction of four battleships, not a bad achievement for a boat which is only

105 feet in length, and which, even upon the surface, can hardly be seen at all. Only four feet of the Octopus shows above the surface when she is lying exposed to view.

She has a small conning tower and a periscope that rises like a flagpole above the water when the Octopus is moving submerged at her usual depth. This periscope enables the crew of the submarine to see what is upon the surface of the sea, even while they are 16 or 20 feet below, and also enables the pilot to get direction on objects, just as the compass will guide him for general direction. It is composed of a set of prisms which can be made to revolve by pressing an electric button. By reflection, the instrument shows objects on the surface of the sea and in actual size on the contrivance at the base of the periscope in the body of the submarine.

In the early submarines it was necessary for the captain to bring his vessel to the surface, exposing his conning tower, whenever he wished to make an observation, but with the advent of the periscope he navigates his vessel completely submerged, occasionally rising so that the tube emerges but a few feet above the water, enabling him to observe the desired objects and then submerging again. Even when running with the periscope exposed above the surface it is very difficult to locate it from another ship, as its size and appearance are such as to deceive the observer.

That is where the submarine has an enormous advantage over the warship that must remain on the surface. No projectile will penetrate more than two feet below the surface, so that so soon as a submarine is submerged she cannot be hit, even when the top of her conning tower is showing, for the conning tower itself is six feet high on the Octopus.

About the only thing that a warship can do, in fact, when attacked by a submarine, is to turn tail and run. Every modern warship possesses greater speed than the submarine, so that should the larger vessel observe the approach in time, she could keep out of reach, for the submarine must get within a distance of three-quarters of a mile or half a mile before she can launch her torpedo. But then, the submarine can sink, travel for miles below the surface and thus get close to her quarry without being seen.

Under cover of night this method of attack is particularly easy. The huge bulk of the warship makes a glaring target, and no net was ever invented that would withstand a torpedo attack. The torpedo net has been abolished in all the most modern warships as practically useless.

The Warmth of a Snow House.

Usually our snow igloos allowed each man from 18 to 20 inches space in which to lie down, and just room enough to stretch his legs well. With our sleeping bags they were entirely comfortable no matter what the weather outside. The snow is porous enough to admit of air circulation, but even a gale of wind without would not affect the temperature within. It is claimed by the natives that when the wind blows, a snow house is warmer than in a period of still cold. I could see no difference. A new snow igloo is, however, more comfortably than one that has been used, for newly-cut snow blocks are more porous. In one that has been used there is always a crust of ice on the interior which prevents a proper circulation of air.—Dillon Wallace, in the Outing Magazine.

Descendant of Lady Washington.

If a nation no longer has people who saw Washington, there are at least lineal descendants of Lady Washington. One of them is Mrs. Britannia W. Kennon, who is Martha Washington's great granddaughter, and descendant of the last Lord Baltimore. She celebrated her ninety-second birthday lately at her home in Georgetown, D. C., where she was born and has spent her life.

We have now ready for immediate shipment 800,000 Brick. In addition to making building brick we are now prepared to make Vitrified Hollow Building Blocks. They are impervious to moisture, are fire frost and vermin proof. There is no other material known which equals it for building purposes. They are cheaper and better than either lumber, stone or concrete. The ideal material for cellar, wall, barns, stables, warehouses, residences, etc. We make to order hollow brick for partitions ready to plaster on. No lathing required. We make drain tile from 3 to 18 inches in diameter, and vitrified sidewalk and street paving brick, red, chocolate, brown and salt-glazed face brick. Nothing will go through fire and stand but burnt clay. Lumber burns up and stone and cement crumbles from heat and water in case of fire. Ask them at San Francisco. Write for further information.

FEARS NOTHING CAN BE DONE

Bonaparte Is Evasive When Oklahomans Visit Him.

Washington, May 21.—Three democratic members of the Oklahoma constitutional convention, Messrs. Ledbetter, Moore, and Hayes, appointed committee by the president of the convention, W. H. Murray, to come to Washington and confer with the legal officers of the government respecting certain developments affecting the election to ratify the constitution arrived in Washington yesterday.

This afternoon they had a talk with Attorney General Bonaparte calling his attention to the injunctions which had been issued restraining the governor from issuing his election proclamation and the election of officers of the territory from performing certain duties and asking that the attorney general take steps to have the legality of this action looked into. Incidentally they took up the recent decision of Judge Hancock which in effect defers for a long time the election for the ratification of the constitution recently adopted.

Speaking subsequently of the committee's visit Mr. Bonaparte admitted that the gentlemen from Oklahoma had asked him to appoint government counsel to defend certain suits growing out of the action of the constitutional convention. The attorney general replied that this course would seem to identify the department of justice with one side of the controversy to the exclusion of the other.

to which he thought there was very serious objection.

To the statement that the people of Oklahoma desired to act in strict observance of the law in framing their constitution, and to that end asked for any suggestion the department might see to make, the attorney general said that the situation was peculiar and in part at least so far as he knew, unprecedented. He thought it would involve a serious question of policy whether any such suggestion could properly be made in advance of the final adoption of the constitution and its submission to the president, and that in any event the laws and the practice of the department forbade the attorney to give any legal opinion unless requested to do so by the president or a head of one of the executive departments.

In an interview here today, Mr. Ledbetter, said he had received satisfactory assurance that the president had not said he would refuse to issue a statehood proclamation. On the contrary he felt satisfied the president would issue, when convinced, as he would be that the constitution is republican in form as required by the enabling act. The delegation as well as Governor Frantz will remain in Washington until the president's return. Tonight the committee will make public a statement detailing the facts they presented to the attorney general.

MORE ABOUT THAT COWARDLY SCHEME.

Last week The News warned voters against a scheme of Judge Furman's political enemies to induce many of his supporters to vote for both him and certain other candidates from the Indian Territory.

It is that article it was said such votes would not be counted. In this last statement the News was in error. It would be the duty of the holders of the primary election to count such a ballot, but this fact remains unchanged: such a vote would be a nullity—just as if a man did not vote at all for senator. Only one nominee can be chosen from each of the two territories. The state central committee has decreed that the leading man in each territory shall be declared a democratic nominee, and they will be so declared. No one is going to fly in the face of the party organization and dispute the binding effect of the recommendation. No one dares dispute the wisdom of this arrangement.

Voters, you may depend upon it, if any such votes as referred to above are cast, they will be cast by unsophisticated friends of Judge Furman, for it's in Judge Furman's strongholds where this poisonous dope is being scattered. Neither Judge Furman nor his friends would stoop to such cowardly a scheme to sap an opponent's support.

Every voter should vote for one man for U. S. senator, who lives in Indian Territory, and for one who lives in Oklahoma. If you are a friend of Furman you will do this and will spare an insult any suggestion to the contrary.

There are wily, unscrupulous henchmen abroad in the land working against him. Beware of their wiles!

A NEW CANDIDATE

McGinley, of Norman, for Corporation Commissioner.

The News is authorized to announce for the office of state corporation commissioner P. J. McGinley, of Norman, Oklahoma.

For 18 years Mr. McGinley was in the traffic department where he became quite proficient and conversant with the interpretation of freight tariffs and the making of freight rates. Four years ago he quit the railway service and has since been in mercantile and cotton business.

There is no question but that on the state commission the services of a member familiar with railroad technique would be invaluable, assuming he were an incorruptible man, and the democracy of Mr. McGinley's home county vouch for him as such a man.

Here is what his home paper, the Norman Democrat-Topic says of him:

It is with pleasure that we announce the candidacy of P. J. McGinley of Norman for the important position of corporation and railroad commissioner. Mr. McGinley is 37 years old and has been in active business since 18 years of age. He is a splendid business man and has the respect of the business world. He is a man of exemplary habits—just the person a business man would employ to conduct his affairs. Mr. McGinley is a man of decisive opinions and is the best posted candidate on railroad affairs who is before the people today. He possesses some of the elements of the demagogue, but believes that all interests are entitled to a fair and impartial hearing.

The democratic county central committee at a meeting on April 13th unanimously declared for his nomination.

Pat McGinley will receive the vote of every democrat in Cleveland county, where he is so well and favorably known. His platform is well worth your time to read. It is straight forward and means what it says.

HAVE FAITH IN FURMAN

Ada Statesman Spoke to Packed Houses in Delaware County.

Grove, I. T., May 19.—Henry M. Furman, Saturday afternoon and night, spoke in the county seat of the new county of Delaware.

In the afternoon the court house was packed with farmers who were evidently well pleased with the utterances of the speaker. At night the town people turned out en masse to hear what they pronounced the best speech ever heard in Delaware county.

Judge Furman was a stranger here, but the people know him now and regard him as their friend. The election returns in this county will show that the people have faith in Furman.

Department of Woman's HOME MISSION SOCIETY

Why Have Home Missions?
1. Because Christ demanded them when he said, "Ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth."
2. Because we are directly concerned in home affairs. The wealth of our country makes for righteousness or iniquity, and thus shapes the destiny of our children. The early churches in Asia Minor and Africa fell away from Christ, and it is possible for the United States to revert to barbarism unless a holy zeal for the salvation of every citizen moves our hearts.

We have organized missions in 23 cities.

We are often asked, "What character of work is done in the city missions?"

There are five day nurseries, eight kindergartens, eighteen industrial schools, seven night schools, fifteen boys' clubs, ten girls' clubs, eleven mothers' clubs, five dispensaries, twelve Sunday schools, five reading rooms, one Door of Hope, house to house visiting, distributing, of literature, and the needy supplied.

Statistics: Auxiliaries 2,609; Increase 244; members, 53,333; increase 6,325. Names on baby roll this year, 2,488, babies paid, $1345.43; names on brigade this year, 3,452; brigade paid $2,677.95. (Brigades have raised since beginning, four years ago, $9,346.53.)

Remember we meet every Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the parlors of our new church. Every member of the church ought to be with us.

The final proof of value of a shoe—or any other article, for that matter—is the experience of those who buy it. The satisfactory results which the "La France" gives its wearers are shown by the large percentage of women who repeatedly come back to this store for another pair. The endurance of these stylish shoes never fails to commend itself to the practical woman. As for "La France" comfort—that can best be told by trying on a pair here. Then, too, there's much shoe satisfaction to be gained by a personal inspection of the "La France" shoes now being exhibited.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

GOVERNOR QUILTS UNDER FIRE

Herbert James Hagerman, the governor of New Mexico, who has resigned his office while under investigation by the legislature concerning his part in alleged extensive land frauds, is only 31 years old and one of the youngest governors in the country.

The charge is that the governor, without the knowledge and consent of the commissioner of public lands, delivered to the Pennsylvania Development company a deed for 7,000 acres of timber land, that he took the seal of the commissioner and unlawfully affixed it to the deed, that the land is worth from $25 to $100 an acre, but was sold at only three dollars an acre, that the federal law at the time forbade the selling of more than 100 acres in any one purchaser, and that therefore the territorial institutions to which these lands belonged were defrauded.

Ex-Gov. Hagerman is a product of the west. Born in Milwaukee, he spent his boyhood in Colorado and his youth in New Mexico.

Hagerman was appointed in 1897 by President McKinley second secretary of the United States embassy in Russia. E. A. Hitchcock, now secretary of the interior, was then ambassador at St. Petersburg. It was largely due to his good work as secretary of the embassy, both under Mr. Hitchcock and later under Charles D. Tower, that his appointment as governor was secured. Mr. Hitchcock urged the appointment upon President Roosevelt. Following as it did close upon that of another young man to a similar position, the inference was drawn that Mr. Hagerman secured his place through a former connection with the rough riders, as did the governor of Oklahoma, but this is a mistake.

TO HEAD THEOSOPHISTS

Mrs. Annie Besant of Benares, India, has been nominated as world president of the Theosophical society, to succeed the late Col. Henry Steele Olcott, the president-founder of the organization. Col. Olcott, who was an old New York newspaper man and a veteran of the civil war, died recently following his return to India from Chicago, where he had attended the annual convention of the American section. On his deathbed Col. Olcott formally named Mrs. Besant, who had for years been his co-worker, to succeed him, a prerogative he held. The nomination must be ratified by a two-thirds vote of the societies of the world and the vote is soon to be taken.

Mrs. Besant is a noted writer and lecturer. She was born in Ireland. Her brother is Sir Henry Wood, secretary of the Society of Arts of London, who came to this country in 1903 on business connected with the world's fair at Chicago.

Mrs. Besant has made three lecture tours of America. She founded the Central Hindu College for girls at Benares, India, which has done wonderful work in raising the condition of the native girls of that country, and is its president.

The Theosophical society should not be confounded with the society at Point Loma, Cal., presided over by a Madame Tingley, which is an off-shoot from the parent body. The Theosophical society was founded in New York city in 1875 by Mme. Blavatsky and Col. Olcott, and now has branches in all the principal cities of the civilized world. The headquarters of the society are at Benares, India.

TO PAINT KAISER'S SON

Mrs. Ruth Jewett Burgess, wife of Prof. John W. Burgess, Roosevelt lecturer at the University of Berlin, has been commissioned to paint a portrait of Prince Augustus Wilhelm, fourth son of Emperor William of Germany.

Mrs. Burgess was born in Montpelier, Vt., 42 years ago, and was the only child of Hon. T. P. Jewett, a leading banker and financier of Vermont a generation ago. Early in life she showed a decided talent for art, and this was fostered and developed. Thomas W. Wood, for many years president of the National Academy of Design of New York, who was a native of Montpelier and the founder of the Wood art gallery in this city, early took notice of Miss Jewett's talents and under his instructions she developed remarkable skill.

While in New York with her husband, when he was professor of constitutional and international law at Columbia university, she studied under William J. Whittmore and Kenyon Cox of that city.

During the past ten years Mrs. Burgess has been abroad several times, studying under the best art instructors and copying from the old masters in the famous galleries of the old world.

During the past winter while her husband was engaged in his duties at the University of Berlin, Mrs. Burgess has been copying several celebrated pictures in the Kaiser Friedrich museum and the Kaiser Friedrich Denkmal, the private galleries of the emperor. While engaged in this work her painting attracted the notice of Emperor William and the commission to paint the portrait of his son followed.

Mrs. Burgess inherited a large property from her father, much of which she has devoted to charitable purposes. She was much interested in the founding of the Wood art gallery in Montpelier, Vt., which was presented to that city by Thomas W. Wood in the hanging there of more than 100 famous products of his brush. Prof. Burgess has been a trustee of this art gallery since its inception.

PEACE ADVOCATE HONORED

Baron D'Estournelles de Constant, one of the distinguished foreign representatives at the recent dedication of the enlarged Carnegie institute in Pittsburgh, and who received the degree of LL. D. from the Western University of Pennsylvania, is one of the foremost authorities in the world on arbitration. He was a member of the first Hague conference, and is now one of the French members of The Hague court.

He is organizing the representative men of every nation into an international federation, whose motto is "My country's good through the peace of the world." The arbitration group in the French parliament, organized by him, has enabled France to conclude many treaties of arbitration.

Baron D'Estournelles some time ago invited a delegation of 100 from the United States to visit Paris and make a tour of France as the guests of his group.

Laron De Constant, who married an American woman and is a personal friend of Andrew Carnegie, is also a great admirer of President Roosevelt. At the time the British and German claims against Venezuela would have led to the use of military force and in his intervention the president demanded that the question be submitted to The Hague tribunal. Baron De Constant, a member of the tribunal, wrote to the president, thanking him for saving it from extinction. He has been French ambassador to Turkey and to England. He has been a senator of France and is an orator of note.

GETS $50,000 A YEAR.

YOUNG MAN WHOSE SALARY EQUALS THAT OF PRESIDENT.

Hoocher College Graduate, Aged 30, Receives Handsome Pay as Mining Expert for the Guggenheims.—Was Star Athlete.

Indianapolis.—How many young men receive a straight salary equal to that of the president of the United States? There is one at least, Oscar B. Perry, of Bloomington, Ind., who, at his age, 30, receives $50,000 a year for his services.

This young man is paid that much for his brains, and it is not an excessive salary from the standpoint of the corporation which employs him. The investment of $50,000 a year has brought returns approaching the millions. It is a remarkable story of an Indiana boy who made the best of his talents and his opportunities, who made a college education count for all that it was possible to get out of it, and who now holds a position that few men of his age seldom attain. And he has been out of college but ten years, having graduated at the age of 20. Mr. Perry, an expert mining engineer, is general manager of some half dozen of the Guggenheim mining enterprises of Colorado, California, Canada and Alaska, the combined capitalization of which represents many millions. He has been with the Guggenheims about four years, his selection for the important position he now holds having been made by John Hays Hammond, long the right hand man of Cecil Rhodes in South Africa and recognized as one of the foremost mining experts of the world. His attention was attracted to Mr. Perry several years ago.

After graduation from Indiana university at Bloomington from the department of physics in 1897 Mr. Perry took a year's graduate work at the institution, then entered the school of mines of Columbia university, from which he took the E. M. degree in 1900. Soon after, in company with his father, a wealthy owner of some quarries in the Bloomington district and one of the first to demonstrate the beauty and value for building purposes of the Obitile limestone, he went to California and became interested in dredging for gold. He studied the dredges with the eye of an expert and made so many improvements that the machines soon came to be known as the Perry dredges.

His inventions soon attracted the attention of Mr. Hammond and led to his employment by the Guggenheims. One of the first enterprises handled by him for the Guggenheims was the Pacific Gold Dredging company of Oroville, Cal. He was soon operating for this company a fleet of five dredges, all eminently successful from the start.

Ordinarily Mr. Perry travels 20,000 to 40,000 miles every year. In 1903 he visited Yukon, but traveled under an assumed name in order to better study mining conditions in the famous gold field. Last year he went again in one of the first boats in June, and during the four months after his arrival there accomplished results unheard of before in so short a period. From Alaska, near the close of the mining season, he went direct to the Canadian properties, traveling some 150 miles on horseback. From there he returned to New York city, where he spends his winters filing his reports, consulting with other engineers of the Guggenheim companies and outlining plans for the coming season. Notwithstanding his great successes, Mr. Perry is as modest and unassuming as when a student at the university. He is a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity and was the only member of his class to take his degree from the department of physics.

While he was delving in physics as few state university students have ever done before or since he played quarter back on the eleven and caught for the baseball nine. And he was a star in both games. He looked to the body as well as the mind. Now he is able to manage the business of several big companies, such as his father and brother from one end to another, now in Colorado, next in Alaska, then Canada, then New York, all the time managing and planning and looking to the future, and he still looks as young and carries the same enthusiasm as when he piloted the cream and crime in eleven to victory on the grid iron.

Rough Riders' Monument Unveiled in Arlington Cemetery.

Washington.—With an elaborate military display and appropriate exercises, the monument of the men of the "Rough Riders," who served in the war with Spain was dedicated in Arlington cemetery recently. In addition to the regular troops stationed in this vicinity and a part of the national guard of the District of Columbia, the ceremonies were participated in by President Roosevelt, who was colonel of the First Volunteer cavalry, or "Rough Riders," and many representatives of the diplomatic corps and officers of the army and navy. President Roosevelt delivered an address. A large number of former members of the regiment from out of town attended the dedication.

A trust fund is in charge of a committee whose duty it will be to add the names of all members to the list of dead checked on the shaft until the roster is complete. The monument is the design of Mrs. Capron, widow of Captain Allen K. Capron, who fell at Las Guasimas.

While not the largest monument in the historic cemetery, it is the largest monolith, being 11 feet high on a base six by six, and bears the inscription:

SUBMARINES

JAPAN ITALY UNITED STATES RUSSIA ENGLAND FRANCE

Perhaps this story of the appropriation of millions for new engines of war would not look well or harmonize with an account of the latest discussions of the International Peace Tribunal, but nevertheless it makes interesting reading matter, for it is a fact that the last congress voted $3,000,000 for the purchase of submarine boats, and it is also a fact that in spite of the many adverse criticisms on this track of the navy, this nation, as well as other world powers, are steadily developing this under-the-sea terror, and are gradually collecting quite a fleet of them.

It seems no longer to be a question as to whether submarines shall be built, but rather which of the several types of boats which have been produced is the best and the most worthy to be used as a pattern to follow in building those which will be purchased with the three million dollars of the people's money. Submarines have undoubtedly obtained a long and definite place in the general scheme of defense in the United States. They are recognized as an important factor in naval warfare, so that a new type of boat called the Octopus, built by the Electric Boat company, possesses a peculiar interest. For the Octopus is regarded by many experts as the highest type yet attained in this style of naval weapon. They call her the last word among the deadly submerged craft which are built to steel upon and destroy the battleship of the enemy.

There are scores of reasons, says its inventor, for calling the Octopus the greatest of all submarine craft. She is the blindest, to begin with. With a length of 105 feet, she makes the early type of submarine look like a toy. In spite of her greatly superior bulk she is more easily handled and guided than the smaller craft.

Her size and capacity are considered as confidential by the navy department, the only figures given out so far being that her length is 105 feet and displacement about 300 tons. Unofficial finding when running over the trial course shows her to have a speed of about 12 knots on the surface and nine knots submerged.

What would be the part such a vessel would play in a naval war?

She could sink beneath the surface of the sea, and completely out of sight of any possible enemy, travel any desired distance, rise to the surface so that only the top of the periscope would be showing, and launch a torpedo at an opposing battleship. Then down she could go again. And if the torpedo struck home, down the battleship would go, also, never to rise again.

These torpedoes give the ordinary individual an uneasy feeling, even to think of them. At a speed of 24 knots an hour, six feet below the surface of the water, so as to strike a warship below the armor belt, a torpedo hums along, leaving a trail of foam, 16 feet eight inches of menacing power driving straight from the goal. In the war head of the torpedo are from 250 to 300 pounds of gun cotton, enough to sink the strongest vessel afloat, or to blow up a town, and at the extreme tip of the rushing monster is a war nose, an extremely sensitive "cap" that causes the torpedo to explode when it strikes an object. A submarine can stand off a distance of three-quarters of a mile from a warship and launch a torpedo that will reach its destination.

It's not a beautiful thing to think of death and destruction stealing from the sea below the surface upon a huge vessel of war filled with human beings. It makes all precautions seem vain and useless, and the usual elements of warfare are discounted. But then Mercurius of Queensbury rules do not apply in actual war, and there is nothing to prevent hitting below the belt—especially below the armor belt. If the Octopus made a hit with each of her torpedoes, her part in a naval engagement would be the utter destruction of four battleships, not a bad achievement for a boat which is only

105 feet in length, and which, even upon the surface, can hardly be seen at all. Only four feet of the Octopus shows above the surface when she is lying exposed to view.

She has a small conning tower and a periscope that rises like a flagpole above the water when the Octopus is moving submerged at her usual depth. This periscope enables the crew of the submarine to see what is upon the surface of the sea, even while they are 16 or 20 feet below, and also enables the pilot to get direction on objects, just as the compass will guide him for general direction. It is composed of a set of prisms which can be made to revolve by pressing an electric button. By reflection, the instrument shows objects on the surface of the sea and in actual size on the contrivance at the base of the periscope in the body of the submarine.

In the early submarines it was necessary for the captain to bring his vessel to the surface, exposing his conning tower, whenever he wished to make an observation, but with the advent of the periscope he navigates his vessel completely submerged, occasionally rising so that the tube emerges but a few feet above the water, enabling him to observe the desired objects and then submerging again. Even when running with the periscope exposed above the surface it is very difficult to locate it from another ship, as its size and appearance are such as to deceive the observer.

That is where the submarine has an enormous advantage over the warship that must remain on the surface. No projectile will penetrate more than two feet below the surface, so that so soon as a submarine is submerged she cannot be hit, even when the top of her conning tower is showing, for the conning tower itself is six feet high on the Octopus.

About the only thing that a warship can do, in fact, when attacked by a submarine, is to turn and run. Every modern warship possesses greater speed than the submarine, so that should the larger vessel observe the approach in time, she could keep out of reach, for the submarine must get within a distance of three-quarters of a mile or half a mile before she can launch her torpedo. But then, the submarine can sink, travel for miles below the surface and thus get close to her quarry without being seen.

Under cover of night this method of attack is particularly easy. The huge bulk of the warship makes a glaring target, and no net was ever invented that would withstand a torpedo attack. The torpedo net has been abolished in all the most modern warships as practically useless.

The Warmth of a Snow House.

Usually our snow igloos allowed each man from 18 to 20 inches space in which to lie down, and just room enough to stretch his legs well. With our sleeping bags they were entirely comfortable no matter what the weather outside. The snow is porous enough to admit of air circulation, but even a gale of wind without would not affect the temperature within. It is claimed by the natives that when the wind blows, a snow house is warmer than in a period of still cold. I could see no difference. A new snow igloo is, however, more comfortable than one that has been used, for newly-cut snow blocks are more porous. In one that has been used there is always a crust of ice on the interior which prevents a proper circulation of air.—Dillon Wallace, in the Outlook Magazine.

FEARS NOTHING CAN BE DONE

Bonaparte Is Evasive When Oklahomans Visit Him.

Washington, May 21.—Three democratic members of the Oklahoma constitutional convention, Messrs. Ledbetter, Moore, and Hayes, appointed committee by the president of the convention, W. H. Murray, to come to Washington and confer with the legal officers of the government respecting certain developments affecting the election to ratify the constitution arrived in Washington yesterday.

This afternoon they had a talk with Attorney General Bonaparte calling his attention to the injunctions which had been issued restraining the governor from issuing his election proclamation and the election of officers of the territory from performing certain duties and asking that the attorney general take steps to have the legality of this action looked into. Incidentally they took up the recent decision of Judge Hancock which in effect defers for a long time the election for the ratification of the constitution recently adopted.

Speaking subsequently of the committee's visit Mr. Bonaparte admitted that the gentlemen from Oklahoma had asked him to appoint government counsel to defend certain suits growing out of the action of the constitutional convention. The attorney general replied that this course would seem to identify the department of justice with one side of the controversy to the exclusion of the other.

to which he thought there was very serious objection.

To the statement that the people of Oklahoma desired to act in strict observance of the law in framing their constitution, and to that end asked for any suggestions the department might see to make, the attorney general said that the situation was peculiar and in part at least so far as he knew, unprecedented. He thought it would involve a serious question of policy whether any such suggestion could properly be made in advance of the final adoption of the constitution and its submission to the president, and that in any event the laws and the practice of the department forbade the attorney to give any legal opinion unless requested to do so by the president or a head of one of the executive departments.

In an interview here today, Mr. Ledbetter, said he had received satisfactory assurance that the president had not said he would refuse to issue a statehood proclamation. On the contrary he felt satisfied the president would issue, when convinced, as he would be that the constitution is republican in form as required by the enabling act. The delegation as well as Governor Frantz will remain in Washington until the president's return. Tonight the committee will make public a statement detailing the facts they presented to the attorney general.

MORE ABOUT THAT COWARDLY SCHEME.

Last week The News warned voters against a scheme of Judge Furman's political enemies to induce many of his supporters to vote for both him and certain other candidates from the Indian Territory side. It stated that if that scheme was carried out, the votes would not be counted. In this last statement the News was in error. It would be the duty of the holders of the primary election to count such a ballot, but this fact remains unchanged: such a vote would be a nullity—just as if a man did not vote at all for senator. Only one nominee can be chosen from each of the two territories. The state central committee has decreed that the leading man in each territory shall be declared a democratic nominee, and they will be so declared. No one is going to fly in the face of the party organization and dispute the binding effect of the recommendation. No one dares dispute the wisdom of this arrangement. Voters, you may depend upon it, if any such votes as referred to above are cast, they will be cast by unsophisticated friends of Judge Furman, for it's in Judge Furman's stronghold where this poisonous dope is being scattered. Neither Judge Furman nor his friends would stoop to such cowardly a scheme to sap an opponent's support. Every voter should vote for one man for U. S. senator, who lives in Indian Territory, and for one who lives in Oklahoma. If you are a friend of Furman you will do this and will spurn as an insult any suggestion to the contrary. There are wily, unscrupulous henchmen abroad in the land working against him. Beware of their wiles!

A NEW CANDIDATE

McGinley, of Norman, for Corporation Commissioner.

The News is authorized to announce for the office of state corporation commissioner P. J. McGinley, of Norman, Oklahoma.

For 18 years Mr. McGinley was in the traffic department where he became quite proficient and conversant with the interpretation of freight tariffs and the making of freight rates. Four years ago he quit the railway service and has since been in mercantile and cotton business.

There is no question but that on the state commission the services of a member familiar with railroad technique would be invaluable, assuming he were an incorruptible man, and the democracy of Mr. McGinley's home county vouch for him as such a man.

Here is what his home paper, the Norman Democrat-Topic says of him:

It is with pleasure that we announce the candidacy of P. J. McGinley of Norman for the important position of corporation and railroad commissioner. Mr. McGinley is 37 years old and has been in active business since 18 years of age. He is a splendid business man and has the respect of the business world. He is a man of exemplary habits—just the person a business man would employ to conduct his affairs. Mr. McGinley is a man of decisive opinions and is the best posted candidate on railroad affairs who is before the people today. He possesses some of the elements of the demagogue, but believes that all interests are entitled to a fair and impartial hearing.

The democratic county central committee at a meeting on April 17th unanimously declared for his nomination.

Pat McGinley will receive the vote of every democrat in Cleveland county, where he is so well and favorably known. His platform is well worth your time to read. It is straight forward and means what it says.

HAVE FAITH IN FURMAN

Ada Statesman Spoke to Packed Houses in Delaware County.

Grove, I. T., May 18.—Henry M. Furman, Saturday afternoon and night, spoke in the county seat of the new county of Delaware.

In the afternoon the court house was packed with farmers who were evidently well pleased with the utterances of the speaker. At night the town people turned out en masse to hear what they pronounced the best speech ever heard in Delaware county.

Judge Furman was a stranger here, but the people know him now and regard him as their friend. The election returns in this county will show that the people have faith in Furman.

WINNING WITHOUT HENCHMAN OR HORSE.

Even before he began his canvass for the United States senate Henry M. Furman stood high with the people of the new state. Now as he tours the territories reports from places where he speaks show that day by day as the people get better acquainted with the man he grows yet stronger.

This is but natural. He is well known as of senatorial calibre. His career has been such as to command the confidence of the plain honest unpurchasable people throughout the new commonwealth. These people want a man in the senate to work for the people's interest—not a man merely to augment the membership of the Millionaire Club. Furman is not wealthy—indeed is poor as compared with his opponents. He has no burlesques running over the country including his claims and society standing opponents. He is buying votes neither directly nor indirectly; those who are working for him and those who vote for him do so through no mercenary motives—Neither gold nor taints their patriotism.

The following except from the N. A. how he impresses the people while on his tour. Furman's reception in that town last week is representative of how he impresses the people while ever he goes.

He had a large and attentive audience. For an hour and a half he held the closest attention of his audience on the political issues and in the discussion of his excellent platform. Judge Furman is selling his suit to the hands of the people without the influence of money but upon his own merit. If nominated it will be done by the common people whose friend he has always been. At the present time he is attorney for the Indian Farmers Union. This shows his standing among the farmers.

He has many old time friends here and will receive a large vote in Cleveland county. He made one of the strongest speeches ever heard in Norman.

Not a Fish But a Rabbit Story

The News never did make mention of the laughable incident Harry Keller is telling about and it happened about a week ago. Harry is foreman out at the dam site and he has a large force of men who all laugh at the truthfulness of the story. Harry says that never before did he see a cottontail rabbit kill a large snake until the other day. The snake was making an attack on a young rabbit when the mother rabbit entered the fight and completely put the snake out of business. A negro witness on of the hands said to Keller: "Boss, this ain't sure a fighting country. Even the rabbits fight here. They don't do that in Texas do they?"

CHAPTER XXII

An Unexpected Swim

For a time it seemed to me that the fog was life must have been lost and that I had floated down the river with the current which in a few minutes I was in force as it neared the mouth of the river below.

When he had come I did not know for I could not conceive that a man would be swimming in the river at this time of day. Just as I was about to give up and report the affair to the police I could institute a proper search for the body. An idea flashed into my head and I decided to explain the matter in short order.

The ghosts or at least the men who impersonated them had always disappeared from sight at this point on the river bank and doubtless they had dived into the water and found shelter somewhere under the shore. If this were the case a man might easily enough have ventured out from his hiding place and upon seeing me returned and waited until the coast was clear again.

I pulled in close to the shore and paddling slowly along under the overhanging bank I soon discovered a broad flight of stone steps lying on the surface of the water and leading apparently to some sort of a tunnel or cave.

As I made this discovery I had no doubt that the mysterious figure I had seen had emerged from this tunnel and upon encountering me had returned to it with all possible haste. I certainly had no desire to follow him through the submerged entrance to his place of concealment but I determined to wait him with out delay and leaving my skiff at the boat-house I returned for a final reconnoiter before summoning a gang of men to dig down from above and lay bare the subterranean vault to which the submerged stairway doubtless led.

Clambering up on the knoll that overlooked this part of the river I cast my eye in every direction up and down the stream keeping as close a watch as possible on the entire landscape, and, even sooner than I had expected I was rewarded by seeing the figure's head again emerge from the water at about 20 feet off shore.

As he shook the drops from his face and glanced about him apprehensive I crouched low down on the ground back of a bush and watched him at tentively from this point of vantage. His countenance was so distorted with the cold and the water in his eyes that I could not have recognized him even if I had seen him before. He seemed to swim with great difficulty and distress because of the chill of the water, but he went bravely about it and struck out manfully for the shore which he reached in a few short strokes.

As I got into shallow water and made his way to the land I could see that he was fully dressed even to his shoes and that he was shivering violently from the effect of his exertion and the exposure to which he had been subjected.

I was almost on the point of calling out to him and offering him such assistance as I could render, but he should collapse before my eyes when I discovered that he himself had made provision for this contingency.

From under a growth of underbrush he hurriedly extracted a heavy water or storm coat and taking a flask from one of the pockets he raised it to his lips and drank long and greedily. This done he drew the coat nervously about his shaking limbs and with a hunted sort of a look in every direction but mine so that I did not get a view of his face he ran at top speed along the shore and finally disappeared in the trees at the turn of the river.

It would have been futile to have followed him and I once more began to look about me before calling for aid and having the cavern or whatever it was unroofed. The lawn at this part of the grounds was kept in especially good condition as it lay almost directly in front of the house and scattered about it were numerous flower beds and clumps of shrubbery.

In going over this area carefully and systematically as I did I was not long in finding in the center of a mass of thick-leaved evergreen bushes a catch of earth that had evidently been disturbed within a few hours. On brushing away the leaves and dirt which seemed to have been replaced hurriedly in an awkward attempt to conceal the spot I came upon an iron grating like the covering to the manhole of a sewer but with openings which, if they had been clear would have permitted a certain limited amount of ventilation. This lid was hinged at one side but was not fastened down and I had no great difficulty in lifting it up so that I could peer into the blackness below.

An iron ladder, very much rusted and weather worn but apparently perfectly strong and secure was attached to one side of this shaft and, after waiting for a few minutes until my eyes had become accustomed to the blackness of the hole I could see that it was about 12 feet deep and opened into the arched roof of a tunnel of some kind the floor of which as well as the sides and top was constructed of massive masonry.

At times the most level headed and evenly balanced man is tempted to do some foolhardy thing and while I make no claim to any unusual degree of personal bravery and have not a daredevil trait in my disposition I was suddenly seized with an irresistible desire to descend into this forbidding looking pit and investigate it for myself then and there.

My revolver was fully loaded and I also carried a small pocket lamp which had been given me some time before and which I had found useful on several occasions. Less strenuous, however, than the one at hand.

HE WORKED HIS SCIENCE

New Method Employed by Satisfies and Comfortable Husband.

It is the wife who is the head of the house and it was she who decided upon the flat and repeated immediately after the building was a new one scarcely finished and after the repair man had botched a dozen small jobs she decided to move again.

In this she met the lively opposition of the family. They were all content with their rooms and the children begged for a delay. The husband took the matter with calmness and did not enter into the argument after expressing his entire contentment with the present conditions.

The wife who died and went flat hunting but at last she announced that she had come to the conclusion that they would remain. The husband looked up placidly from his coffee cup. I knew that several weeks ago she announced.

But I only decided this morning she reported in surprise.

He smiled pityingly. Down at the burch he explained, we have been giving you absent treatment for five weeks. After this you need not say that there is nothing in science. Then he dodged the sugar bowl.

Much Used Wedding Present.

A Providence girl who has been married about six months had wedded a lady a short time ago from an old school friend who had given her a wedding present which of course demanded one in return. Among her wedding presents the Providence girl had duplicates in the shape of two silver cold trays and in a spirit of economy she decided to give one of these to her friend. It was marked with her own initials but it would be only a matter of a few minutes to have them removed and the proper monogram cut.

She took it to the jeweler and explained what was to be done. He picked up the tray looked at it closely and smiled.

Madame said he it will be impossible. I have already changed the initials on this same tray five times, and it has worn so thin that I can not do it again without cutting through the bottom.

Had Good Eyesight.

A young man from the rural districts went to Boston and while there visited the Harvard astronomical observatory and was allowed to look through a great telescope at the stars. "What is that star?" he inquired, pointing to a very bright one.

"Oh that's Aldebaran," replied the attendant.

"Is it very far off?" asked the youth.

"About 10,000,000 miles."

"Then all I can say," said the visitor, "is that you must have wonderfully good eyes to make out that star's name, at that distance, even with that big telescope. It's really most marvelous."

Do Not Crowd the Season.

The first warm days of spring bring with them a desire to get out and enjoy the exhilarating air and sunshine. Children that have been housed up all winter are brought out and you wonder where they all came from. The heavy winter clothing is thrown aside and many shed their flannels. Then a cold wave comes and people say that grip is epidemic. Colds at this season are even more dangerous than in mid-winter, as there is much more danger of pneumonia. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, however, and you will have nothing to fear. It always cures, and we have never known a cold to result in pneumonia when it was used. It is pleasant and safe to take. Children like it. For sale by G. M. Ramsey, druggist.

Department of Woman's HOME MISSION SOCIETY

M. E. Church, South.

Why Have Home Missions?

1. Because Christ demanded them when he said, "Ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth."

2. Because we are directly concerned in home affairs. The weal or woe of our country makes for righteousness or iniquity, and thus shapes the destiny of our children. The early churches in Asia Minor and Africa fell away from Christ, and it is possible for the United States to revert to barbarism unless a holy zeal for the salvation of every citizen moves our hearts.

We have organized missions in 23 cities.

We are often asked, "What character of work is done in the city missions?"

There are five day nurseries, eight kindergartens, eighteen industrial schools, seven night schools, fifteen boys' clubs, ten girls' clubs, eleven mothers' clubs, five dispensaries, twelve Sunday schools, five reading rooms, one Door of Hope, house to house visiting, distributing, of literature, and the needy supplied.

Statistics: Auxiliaries 2,609; increase 244; members, 53,833; increase 6,325. Names on baby roll this year, 2,488, babies paid, $1245.43; names on brigade this year, 3,452; brigade paid $2,677.95. (Brigades have raised since beginning, four years ago, $9,316.53.)

How many of us are reading Our Homes, our own mission paper, 50 cents a year.

Remember we meet every Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the parlors of our new church. Every member of the church ought to be with us.

Sunday night we enjoyed a very interesting and inspiring report from Mrs. Barry, who was one of the delegates to the recent convention of the Home Missionary Society held at Norman. After hearing this report we all

LA FRANCE SHOE For Women

$3.00 $3.50

¶ The final proof of value of a shoe—or any other article, for that matter—is the experience of those who buy it. ¶ The satisfactory results which the "La France" gives its wearers are shown by the large percentage of women who repeatedly come back to this store for another pair. ¶ The endurance of these stylish shoes never fails to commend itself to the practical woman. ¶ As for "La France" comfort—that can best be told by trying on a pair here. ¶ Then, too, there's much shoe satisfaction to be gained by a personal inspection of the "La France" shoes now being exhibited.
